

Beneath A Tranquil Sea

A Chateau Gris Production

Six years in the making, Beneath A Tranquil Sea was filmed in the waters of the Pacific Northwest, from Puget Sound to Vancouver Island, British Columbia. This is a magical world of animals as colorful as any found in tropical waters, many seen here on film for the first time.

Beneath A Tranquil Sea is the perfect introduction to the marvelous diversity of life found in the cold waters of the Pacific Northwest. Filmed entirely in broadcast quality digital video format, the footage shows the underwater world in color and clarity that will delight even the most experienced diver!

Divers and naturalists seeking a deeper knowledge of the biology of these waters can turn on DVD subtitles to see both the common and scientific name or location of each of the many species seen.

BONUS FOOTAGE! Take a break from the chilly Northwest and enjoy "Down and Dirty", Best of Show winner in the EPIC International Photo Competition. Filmed in Indonesia and Papua New Guinea, this beautiful footage will introduce you to the bizarre and beautiful creatures that made "muck diving" famous. Another special feature, this one from the Philippines, may also be found.

Award-winning videographer Ray Izumi logged more than two thousand dives in the Pacific Northwest to capture the footage for this DVD. His videos have received numerous awards, and have been featured at film festivals around the world. Stock footage is also available for broadcasters.
